I. Comment on the following extract (use 100–150 words).

The Museum Now. Breaking Down Barriers to Entry

The first and oldest of the three characteristics that define a museum is its collection; there is simply no museum without a collection. Yet the ways we typically understand a museum's collection is, and has always been, heavily weighted towards the objects themselves, rather than the arguably equally important series of decisions that determined how that collection was brought together. Moreover when we visit a museum we rarely see more than a tiny percentage of the objects in its collection. Again, the decisions about what to display and what to keep in storage are seldom acknowledged.

The second key characteristic of the museum is that the collection should be accessible to the public. However, that a collection is open to the public does not automatically mean those who visit are representative of the public. Museum audiences typically skew towards better-educated and more affluent demographics. Free entry is no panacea. Cost is just one barrier to entry, and, while important, may not actually be the biggest one. Social and cultural barriers can be just as strong. Despite some of their best efforts, museums are frequently perceived as elitist and unwelcoming – especially when housed in grand classical edifices as so many still are. Just as a museum cannot consider itself to be a truly public institution unless its staff's demographic makeup reflects the public at large, the same can be said of its audience. Museums cannot be properly public institutions unless they can reach and connect with everyone. Many museums are making huge and consistent efforts to do this, but what is required is perhaps something more profound. Rather than defining themselves as existing somehow beyond the quotidian realities of daily life, museums need to find ways to dissolve the boundaries that exist between them and the outside world – its identities, cultures, politics and everyday realities. Museums have already begun to look to the digital sphere which, as we have already seen, offers a range of new and transformative possibilities of connecting to, and engaging with, a much broader public.

This takes us to the third and final fundamental characteristic of the museum: that it is housed in a building which acts as both container and symbol of the museum's collection and broader mission. This twin function has always been part of the concept of a museum.

(From "The Museum. From its Origins to the 21st Century" by Owen Hopkins)

The author of the text talks about the main characteristics of a museum. The main museum`s treasure is obviously its collection. There is no doubt that it is the museum`s basis, its history. I am sure that everyone goes to, for example, Tretiakov gallery to admire the great paintings first of all.

In the second paragraph Owen Hopkins writes about the access to museums. I totally agree with the author. I am sure that everyone must have an easy access to the art. People cannot be separated by the amount of money they have, it is not fair. Louvre offers free entry for students from European Union. Well, it is great, but why are students from other countries worse? I think it is a kind of discrimination…

The last characteristic is the museum`s builsing. It is the museum`s face, the museum`s soul… It gives the museum its unique atmoshere.

II. Comment on the statement from the book “Transform Through Travel: Connecting Across Cultures” by Robert Maisel (use 180–220 words):

Travel has the ability to connect you with yourself.

Travelling is one of the greatest things that the humanity has invented. It let us broaden our horizons, enjoy the metroplis` busy vibes or get away from the hustle and bustle of a big city. Travelling gives people a huge range of opportunities. Schoolchildren often fly abroad to learn a foreign language in a country with native speakers. Students leave their home to study in world`s best universities.

Many people travel while trying to find a perfect place for themselves. Where do I feel comfortable? - they ask themselves. The USA - a country, which is often called a 'melting pot' beacause of a mix of cultures and nations. Asian countries with their colorite. Or maybe Siberia - with its picturesque landscapes and kind people. In newspapers I often read stories, which, at first glance, might seem crazy.' A baker from Mexico opened his business in Irkutsk'. 'A guy from Belarus found his place in South Africa'. That`s what the titles say.

Of course, many questions arise. Why can`t we live in a peaceful world? The Earth can`t be divided by borders. They are just imaginary lines. Travel! Travel around our planet, meet people, eat food, enjoy your life and try to find yourself!

III. Write the appropriate ending to the story given below (use 60-90 words):

A young man had a new girl-friend, whom he wanted to impress, so he invited her to go to a world-famous restaurant with him one evening. They dined wonderfully and had numerous drinks; they danced until midnight, and there was a polished musical entertainment. The girl enjoyed the entire evening, and was suitably impressed by everything she saw, including several film stars.

Then the waiter brought the bill at the end of the evening, and when the young man saw how much he had to pay, he was so shocked by the total that he went as white as a sheet.

Think of the ending to the story and write it in the space below.

'What happened, dear?' - the girl asked. 'Do you feel sick? Should I call the ambulance?' 'Oh... I am so sorry... I must have left my money in the hotel... I don`t know what to do... I thought our date would be a bit cheaper...' The girl started laughing. 'Roberto! We are not in Italy! We are in Moscow! The prices are in roubles, not in euros!'

IV. Create your own story based on the series of pictures (use 150–180 words):

Once upon a day, two twin brothers were walking in the London streets. They looked completely similar to each other. Their names were John and Mike. All of a sudden, John decided to get a new haircut and went to a barbershop. He was promised to be made the best haircut ever. John paid ten pounds and the work started. His long unpleasant hair were cut off, his beard and his moustache were shaved, his head was well showered. It wasn`t possible to recognise him after the new haircut. He was looking like those men from the covers of glossy magazines. 'Well, you were right, the new haircut is great. But my hair grow really fast... Can you guarantee me that I won`t have to return to the barbershop the following month?' - John asked. 'Oh yes! None of my clients go to the barbershop more often than four times a year. If that`s not true, I will make you a free haircut'. Within 15 minutes, Mike came to the barbershop...
